Chubby Checker files suit over 'obscene' online app

Rock pioneer and native son calls foul on penis-size app's name ◗ Files infringement lawsuit ◗ Checker's lawyer is asking for $500 million in damages

South Philadelphia-bred rock 'n' roll pioneer Chubby Checker is in a twist — and he's not performing a rendition of the dance he popularized in the 1960s.

Checker, also known as Ernest Evans, has filed a $500 million trademark infringement lawsuit against Hewlett Packard over an app previously available for Palm operating systems. Titled "The Chubby Checker," the program claims to calculate a man's penis prowess based on his shoe size through a "foot-to-chubby converter."

"This lawsuit is about preserving the integrity and legacy of a man who has spent years working hard at his musical craft and has earned the position of one of the greatest musical entertainers of all time," Evans' attorney Willie Gary said in a statement.

"We cannot sit idly and watch as technology giants or anyone else exploits the name or likeness of an innocent person with the goal of making millions of dollars."

A complaint filed last week in federal court says the software title is misleading and "likely to associate plaintiffs' marks with the obscene sexual connotation and images" the app evokes. It claims that association "will diminish and destroy the positive associations the public has of the Chubby Checker name."

The suit alleges that Evans' law firm sent Hewlett Packard a cease-and-desist letter in early September, but that the infringement continues. Officials with Hewlett Packard responded in a statement, "The application was removed in September 2012 and is no longer on any Palm or HP-hosted website."

Evans is asking for $500 million in damages due to "the tarnishment and blurring of the distinctive quality" of the Chubby Checker brand. He's further seeking to recoup profits made from the use of his stage name, though Palm blog WebOSNation estimates the app was downloaded only 84 times before it was taken off the market.

▶ Checker plays in Philly.

'Foot-to-chubby converter'

Though "The Chubby Checker," which initially retailed for 99 cents, is no longer being sold by developer Magic Apps, an archived description of the software reads:

"Any of you ladies out there just start seeing someone new and wondering what the size of there [sic] member is. Well now you can right now from your phone. All you need to do is find out the man's shoe size and plug it in and don't worry where your [sic] from because The Chubby Checker supports shoe measurements of different regions and types. Now with The Chubby Checker there is no need for disappointment or surprise ..."

A checkered list

Metro came up with some additional suggestions for manhood-monitoring programs honoring local celebrities, should any of them be willing participants.

Small and Oates. Conversely, the R&B duo could just go with the title of their fifth album, "Bigger Than Both of Us."

Meek Mill-imeter. As a relative newcomer to the mainstream music scene, Mill hasn't yet realized his moniker's full marketing potential.

Will Stiff. Because Philly's golden boy hasn't done anything risky since that time he got in one little fight and his mom got scared.

Boyz II Member. Or just pick almost any song from their steamy catalog.

Dick Clark's American Gland-stand. No explanation needed.

Don't pass up this unique chance for profit, Mr. Mills.

In yesterday's front page story about Philadelphia public school closings, the headline incorrectly reflected the number of schools saved from closing their doors. The correct number is 10. Metro regrets the error.

Student files criminal complaint after fight in cafeteria

A criminal complaint was filed by one of the two female Archbishop Ryan High School students involved in a cafeteria brawl Friday morning that landed them on YouTube, police said.

According to police, the sophomore, who was only identified as a 16-year-old female, stated the two "had a verbal dispute and she was struck in the face."

In the video, slurs and derogatory accusations escalated into a four-minute hair-pulling slap match. The brawl ended when a male student wiggled his way between the two. No administrators or educators were seen in the video playing peacemaker.

FBI uncovers new clues in decade-long child sex abuse investigation

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATIONS

▶ Officials believe these two men may have information.

The FBI is asking for the public's help in identifying two unknown men who may be able to provide details about the identity of a child sex abuse victim whose image was first recorded in 2003 by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Agents from the Philadelphia field office said in a news release yesterday that one clue recovered from those images — a picture of a yellow T-shirt with the outline of a basketball and the text "New Market Basketball" — has led them to believe at least one of the men they're searching for may have a connection to New Market, Pa.

They are also combing similarly titled towns in Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and others, as well as schools in Alabama and Tennessee.

Agents said the men appear to have been in contact with the victim and may know the child's identity. No charges have yet been filed in connection with the case, and the men have not been convicted of any crime at this point.

Investigators are also asking the public to take a good look at a home with yellow siding and an above-ground swimming pool that can be seen in some of the images, which they say are still being circulated online through numerous child-porn forums.

Need a break

Authorities said if the home or its neighborhood is recognized, it may provide the break they need to find the abused child.

▶ Revel casino is facing hard times.

Atlantic City's Revel files for bankruptcy after less than a year

Ten months after it opened, Revel casino filed for bankruptcy.

Officials with Revel announced Tuesday night that it will file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in March. In a news release, officials said it will reduce about two-thirds of its $1 billion debt by exchanging its debt for equity to lenders.

"This restructuring positions Revel for long-term success," said Michael Garrity, Revel's chief investment officer.

Lenders will provide Revel with about $250 million, but the company will remain in control of the casino's assets.

The company's financial shuffling is expected to finish by the end of spring. No layoffs or management changes are planned, and employees and vendors are expected to be paid on time.

Once considered the next big thing in Atlantic City gaming and entertainment, the flashy $2.4 billion casino, which opened in April, couldn't trump the cash flow of Atlantic City's 12 other casinos.

Man poses as city worker to steal human ashes

Police released a sketch of the man believed to have posed as a city worker in January to steal money and human ashes from a Northeast Philadelphia home.

Police said accomplices robbed a 71-year-old man's safe as the bogus worker escorted the homeowner around his Bustleton home, allegedly checking pipes and wires.

The bandits made off with $4,000 in cash, a $25,000 coin collection and the ashes of the homeowner's wife. Anyone with information is asked to contact police at 215-686-3153. METRO/TR

High school teacher attacked by outsider wielding a hammer

A 19-year-old man allegedly attacked an Upper Darby High School teacher with a claw hammer after student dismissal Tuesday afternoon, officials said.

Darlington James, of Upper Darby, sneaked into the school building just after the school day ended, wrestled with a female teacher and tried to steal her laptop, said Michael Chitwood, Upper Darby School district superintendent.

"It's tragic," Chitwood said. "I mean, teachers are attacked everyday, but not in a violent, robbery attack. … Unfortunately, they're in there trying to do good and these bums that go in there are trying to raise hell."

The teacher, who will remain unidentified, was tidying up the room and heard a knock, officials said. Assuming it was a student, she unlocked the door and addressed James, who was wearing a black hood. James pushed the teacher inside and tried to close the door behind him.

▶ Darlington James

"Teachers are attacked every day, but not in a violent, robbery attack."
CHITWOOD

A struggle ensued. James pulled out a hammer and swung multiple times in her direction.

James wrestled the teacher to the ground. He jumped up and grabbed the teacher's computer and ran out of the room.

Police apprehended James as he fled the school. Chitwood said James is believed to be involved in about six similar crimes.

Chitwood listed a number of plausible, equally awful outcomes: rape, torture, murder.

"But she was feisty," he said. "She fought him and screamed for help, and that's apparently what drove him away."

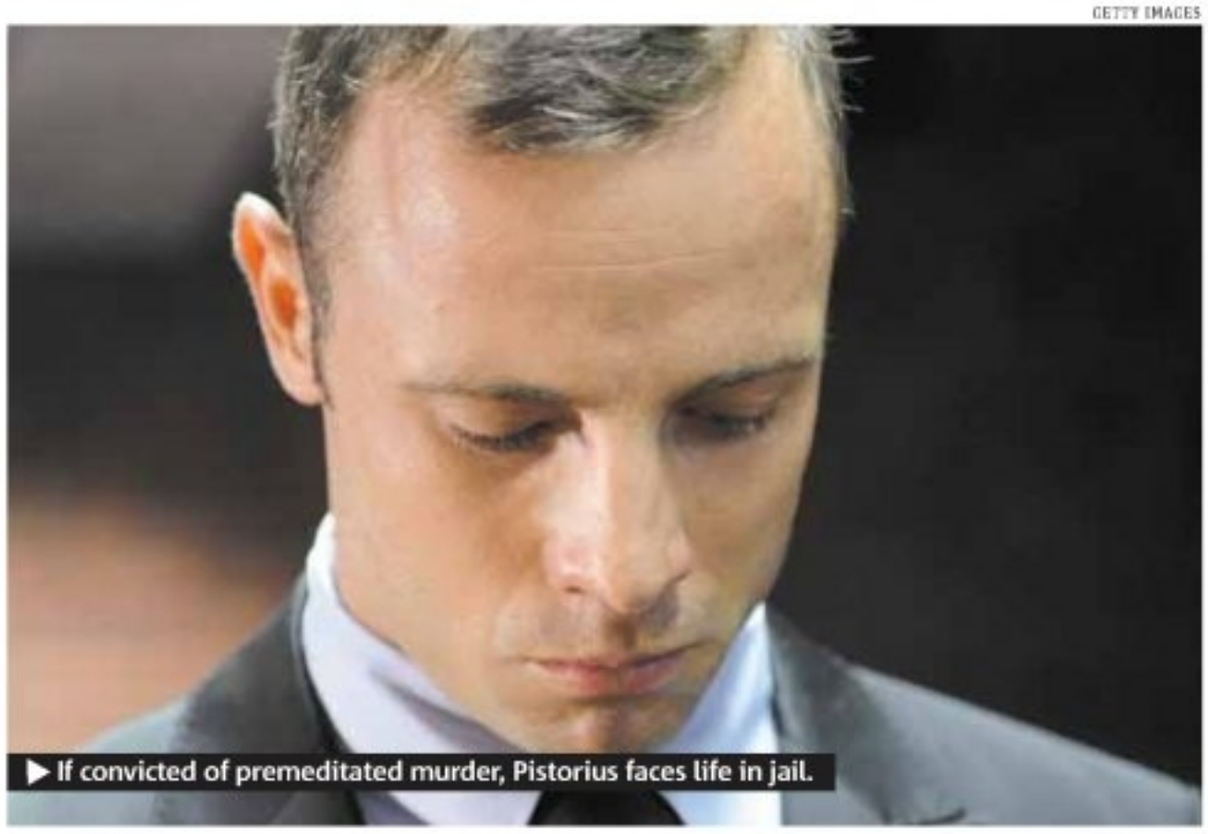
Defense witness lands blows on murder case against 'Blade Runner'

GETTY IMAGES



▶ If convicted of premeditated murder, Pistorius faces life in jail.

A witness heard "nonstop shouting" in the home of South African athletics star Oscar Pistorius shortly before his girlfriend was shot dead, the detective leading the murder investigation said yesterday.

Warrant officer Hilton Botha, a detective with 24 years on the force, also told the Pretoria magistrates court in a bail hearing that police had found two containers of testosterone and needles in Pistorius' bedroom.

The athlete's defense team, which said the containers held an herbal remedy taken legally by many athletes, landed some blows to Botha's portrayal of a cold-blooded killing and described inconsistencies and errors in the initial investigation.

Reeva Steenkamp, 29, was in the toilet of the athlete's home when she was shot dead in the early hours of Feb. 14 — Valentine's Day. She was hit in the head, arm and hip.

"One of our witnesses heard a fight, two people talking loudly at each other ... from 2 in the morning to 3," Botha told the court. Pistorius' first call after the incident was to the manager of his high-security complex at 3:19 a.m., Botha said.

In an affidavit delivered on Tuesday, Pistorius said he woke in the middle of the night and thought an intruder had climbed through his bathroom window and entered the adjoining toilet.

The 26-year-old said he grabbed a 9mm pistol from under his bed and went into the bathroom. REUTERS

Trajectory of shots

Botha, who arrived on the scene an hour after the shooting, challenged Pistorius' affidavit.

"I believe he knew she was in the bathroom and he shot four shots through the door," the detective said, adding that the angle at which the rounds were fired suggested they were aimed at somebody on the toilet.

Pistorius had said he moved into the bathroom on his stumps — the reason he felt so vulnerable — but Botha said the shots went in a "top to bottom" trajectory, suggesting Pistorius was wearing his artificial legs when he pulled the trigger.

"It seems to me it was fired down," he said.

Twitter now using advertising software

SAN FRANCISCO. Twitter Inc. said yesterday it is opening up its platform to third-party advertising management software, taking another step to establish its ad-based business model ahead of an initial public offering.

The application program-ming interface, or API, would allow advertisers to connect their existing ad management software to their Twitter account to automate ads on the micro-messaging platform.

"With the Ads API, marketers now have more tools in their arsenal to help them deliver the right message, to the right audience, on the desktop and on mobile devices — all at scale," Twitter product manager April Underwood wrote in a blog post. REUTERS

China rejects US hacking claims

BEIJING. Accusations by a U.S. computer security company that a secretive Chinese military unit is likely behind a series of hacking attacks are scientifically flawed and hence unreliable, China's Defense Ministry said yesterday.

The statement came after the White House said overnight that the Obama administration has repeatedly taken up its concerns about cyber theft at the highest levels of the Chinese government, including with Chinese military officials.

The security company, Mandiant, identified the People's Liberation Army's Shanghai-based Unit 61398 as the most likely driving force behind the hacking. Mandiant said it believed the unit had carried out "sustained" attacks on a wide range of industries. REUTERS

"The report, in only relying on linking IP address to reach a conclusion the hacking attacks originated from China, lacks technical proof."

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Help the Environment
Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

Early start for Vatican; two pols in trouble

Pleading the Sixth

Court says no to immigrants with guilty pleas

The U.S. Supreme Court declined yesterday to apply retroactively a 2010 ruling that requires lawyers to tell immigrant clients that they can be deported if they plead guilty to certain crimes.

The 7-2 decision was a defeat for thousands of immigrants who might have been able to withdraw guilty pleas in cases alleging ineffective counsel.

These cases predated the court's March 2010 ruling in Padilla v. Kentucky that immigrants should be told some consequences of guilty pleas.

In yesterday's majority opinion, Justice Elena Kagan said the Padilla ruling did not apply to cases that were already final after an appeal.

She said it would not have been apparent to a typical judge before that ruling that the Sixth Amendment right to a competent lawyer extended to advising immigrants about deportation risks. REUTERS

Early voting

Pope could change vote rules

Pope Benedict may change rules governing the conclave that will secretly elect his successor, a move that could move up the global meeting of cardinals who are already in touch about who could best lead Catholics through a period of crisis. The Vatican appears to be aiming to have a new pope elected and then formally installed before Palm Sunday on March 24 so he can preside at Holy Week services leading to Easter. The rule changes could mean that the conclave, might be able to start before March 15, which is currently the earliest it can begin. REUTERS

Bad public servant

Jackson Jr. admits funds misuse

Former congressman Jesse Jackson Jr., the son of a civil rights leader and a one-time rising star in Democratic politics, pleaded guilty yesterday to misusing about $750,000 in campaign money.

Jackson, 47, of Chicago, wept quietly as he entered the plea in U.S. District Court in Washington, where Judge Robert Wilkins accepted the plea.

"Guilty, your honor. I misled the American people," Jackson said after the judge asked his plea. REUTERS

Ex mayor to plead not guilty

Former New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin, the brash spokesman for the city inundated by Hurricane Katrina, was expected to plead not guilty in federal court yesterday to charges that he accepted kickbacks in exchange for city contracts. It will be Nagin's first appearance in court — and the first in the city he led for eight years — since a federal grand jury handed down a 21-count public corruption indictment. The charges include bribery, wire fraud, filing false tax returns, conspiracy and money laundering. REUTERS

The French affliction

US boss: French are idle workers

The CEO of a U.S. tire maker has delivered a crushing summary of how some outsiders view France's work ethic in a letter saying he would have to be stupid to take over a factory. Titan International's Maurice Taylor told the left-wing French industry minister in a letter published by media yesterday that he had no interest in rescuing a plant set for closure. "The French workforce gets paid high wages but works only three hours. They get one hour for breaks and lunch, talk for three and work for three," Taylor wrote on Feb. 8 in the letter to the minister. REUTERS

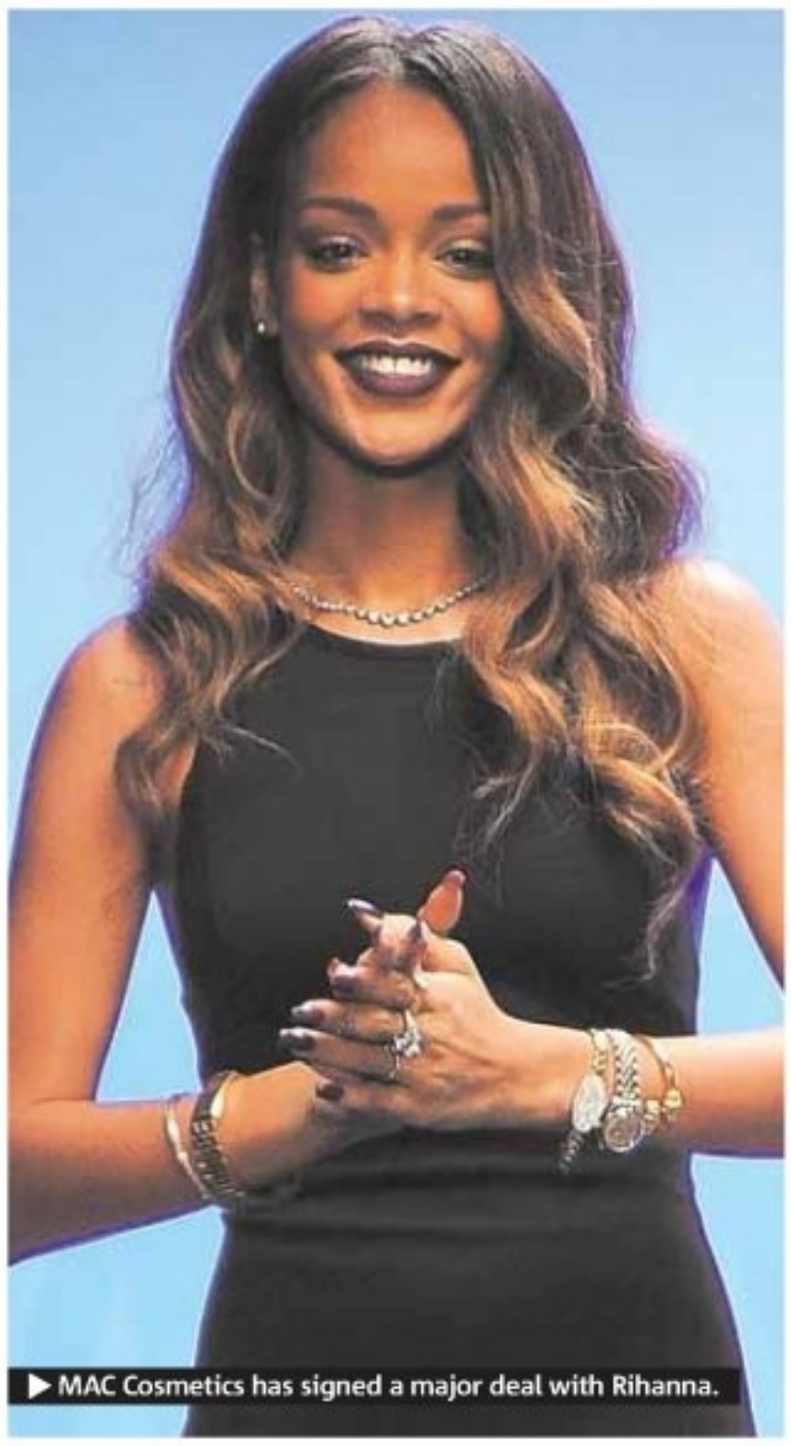
THE WORD

Dorothy Robinson's take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us



▶ MAC Cosmetics has signed a major deal with Rihanna.

MAC and Rihanna team up

Face it: This is Rihanna's moment. The pop star dazzled in Azzedine Alaia at the Grammys, made headlines with her controversial date, Chris Brown and launched her first collection with UK high street retailer River Island during London Fashion Week. And yesterday — on her 25th birthday, no less — it was announced that she's teaming up with MAC Cosmetics on four collections that will hit stores later this year. It's the first time the cosmetics giant will collaborate with one celebrity on multiple lines.

According to an interview with WWD, the first product will be RiRi Woo, a lipstick inspired by MAC's best-selling red, Ruby Woo, Rihanna's favorite.

So how does the pop star feel about all the multitasking?

"Being creative is something that I love, so I can put that into different outlets. Music happens to be the first thing that I gravitated to, and now music opens doors to just so many different opportunities — they all tie in," she says. "My makeup looks, my fashion looks … they help me to express myself as an artist. I think it helps people to understand me or my mood, my story."

Did you hear that? Apply RiRi Woo and apparently you'll understand why she's still with Chris Brown.

Was that Cyrus smoking the good stuff?

Miley Cyrus is coming under fire for a photo posted on Instagram of someone who may or may not be the former Disney star smoking a joint. While smoke and glare obscure most of the person's face, there is a tattoo on a finger in the picture that matches on of Cyrus'. The name of the Instagram account, by the way, is @mileyxxcyrus. Cyrus didn't necessarily deny that it's her in the photo, writing on Twitter only that "I don't have an Instagram."

Simpson names second baby before birth

Jessica Simpson and fiance Eric Johnson have decided on a name for their fetus. "[She's] told people she's going to name the baby Ace!" a source told Us Weekly.

How Johnson and Simpson decided on the name of their 10-month-old daughter, Maxwell Drew, is no secret — Maxwell is Johnson's middle name and Drew is Simpson's mother Tina's maiden name — but no one knows how the couple decided on Ace.

I like Ace, but with his last name? "Ace Johnson" sounds like what a dude would name his penis.

10 REASONS TO SEE A MOVIE

Must-see

STEVE DIETL

▶ Dwayne Johnson is a totally normal father who infiltrates a drug cartel in "Snitch," in theaters Friday.

1 "Snitch" The Rock — sorry, we mean Dwayne Johnson — plays a regular(ish) father trying to take down a fearsome cartel after his son is busted by the DEA. The screenplay — co-written by Justin Haythe of "Revolutionary Road" — is "inspired by true events" (translation: probably not accurate).

2 'Dark Skies' Keri Russell becomes the latest talented thespian caught in the grind of the horror machine, playing a mom fending off aliens.

3 '56 Up' The best idea for a film series ever — checking in with the same group of people every seven years — reaches its eighth round, with its subjects knee-deep in middle age and, in some cases, succumbing to health problems.

4 'A Good Day to Die Hard' The fifth "Die Hard" installment has Bruce Willis battling Russians. Wait: Russians? What century is this?

5 'Safe Haven' The latest Nicholas Sparks adaptation is a soapy romance and also, believe it or not, a thriller, which makes us perversely intrigued.

6 'Beautiful Creatures' With the "Twilight" series wrapped up, a big hole exists for supernatural young-adult movies. And yet everyone's already ignoring the one featuring Emma Thompson.

7 'Escape From Planet Earth' Brendan Fraser, Rob Corddry and Jessica Alba give voice to blue aliens, one of whom is sequestered in Area 51, which totally exists.

8 'Identity Thief' Film critic Rex Reed has taken heat for hurling fat jokes at Melissa McCarthy in his pan of her first splashy film vehicle, in which she goes on a road trip with Jason Bateman.

9 'Happy People: A Year in the Taiga' Werner Herzog's newest film is actually a whittling down and reshaping of a Russian documentary about the inexplicably happy populace of a portion of Siberia.

10 'Amour' Michael Haneke's Oscar nominee finds octogenarian French treasure Jean-Louis Trintignant doting over octogenarian French treasure Emmanuelle Riva as she lies on her death bed.

A good day to work out hard

Jai Courtney plays Jack McClane, aka the son of Bruce Willis in the new 'Die Hard' movie He tells us about the moves that made him buff

Like father, like son: Jai Courtney plays Jack McClane, son of police badass John McClane, in "A Good Day to Die Hard." We chatted him up about his prep for the role and the stunts he pulled off.

You totally upstage Bruce Willis in this movie. How does he feel about that? He must be mad, no?
Oh gosh! I don't know. You might have to ask him.
I'm not speaking to him. You can tell me.
He's the star. I will always respect that. I certainly have no intention of upstaging him.
Did you and Bruce train together? Did he teach you any good moves?
I learned a lot from him. But Bruce has a lot to think about. He didn't have time to worry about coaching me. There are a lot of people, who are paid a lot of money, standing around to do that.
Did you have to get in shape for the role?
A little bit. It made sense to. I'm not a gym junkie, but I've had to get in shape for a few gigs and I enjoy having to do that.
What was your diet and exercise regime like?
Embarrassingly, I've always approached working out a little bit casually. I'm a bit of a wuss when it comes to that sort of stuff. You just have to cut the carbs and hit the gym a little. I was doing a lot of low-impact cardio, like walking and jogging. I'd go first thing in the morning before having anything to eat. It starts up your body engine and speeds up your metabolism. I did a little bit of weight work. But ever since "Spartacus," I've not worked with a trainer. I don't want to be pushed that hard. I'm too fond of beer and pizza to live my life by that kind of code.
Which stunts did you do?
We did pieces of just about everything. But it's unfair not to credit the 20-30 doubles and stunt coordinators that help make them look really cool.
So did you actually do anything?
Absolutely. We're jumping out windows, crashing the vehicles and getting into fights. But insurance companies would have something to say if we tried to attempt it all ourselves.
Bruce Willis is on his fifth Die Hard. This is your first. What tips did he give you for being the perfect John McClane Jr.?
He didn't give me any tips. The kind of knowledge and wisdom that he passed on to me was more organic. I just learned a lot from working with the guy. It wasn't, "Come here boy, let me show you how to do it."
Willis' catchphrase is Yippee-ki-yay. How come you don't have one? Make one up now.
I have no idea. I'll leave it to the professionals.

Q&A

You were a kid when the original "Die Hard" movie came out. Which movie is your favorite?

No. 1. Not only is it the introduction to this iconic franchise, it's a quintessential action film. Great villains. It set up this convention of wise-cracking humor balanced with epic action. And [it] introduced this everyman we've come to love — John McClane.

20TH CENTURY FOX

Do you see the resemblance? Jai Courtney stars opposite Bruce Willis in "A Good Day to Die Hard," in theaters now.

Down to 'Earth'

Two vocal talents from 'Escape From Planet Earth' banter, talk family movies and tell kids not to be popular

THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY

In the new "Escape From Planet Earth," Jessica Alba and Rob Corddry give voices to blue aliens from the planet Baab who get embroiled in mischief on a certain semi-civilized planet in the Milky Way galaxy. Alba and Corddry sat down with Metro to talk about their latest release and kids films in between banter.

You guys have been doing this together for a bit. At what point do you just start messing with each other in interviews?

ROB CORDDRY: God no!

JESSICA ALBA: I don't know. No, I would never do that. That's, like, so rude. Plus, he's my elder, so I just try not to be disrespectful.

RC: That's true. So you sense the wisdom, and you just want to sort of bathe in it. You want to bathe in my wisdom.

JA: Yeah. I do. I mean just the fact that I'm even here is … it's a blessing. I'm very lucky. I'm pinching myself. Is this a dream?

RC: This is really good for me, thank you.

What do you look for in a family film as far as what you're taking your own kids to?

RC: I like to enjoy it myself.

Q&A

This movie is another one of those things where the plot hangs on the smart guy saving the day. How many times do you think audiences need to be told before they finally figure out that smart people should be respected?

RC: That it's a good thing, being smart? Well, this is a very good time for nerds in general. So hopefully you're seeing it a lot more because it is more pervasive now, and kids will want to be smart.

JA: Anyone who peaks in high school is a loser in life. So don't peak in high school.

RC: Yeah, do poorly in high school.

JA: Socially! Don't peak socially. Just make sure you're unpopular. Right?

RC: Oh God, yeah. I hope my kids are just nerdy introverts.

JA: Nerd-burgers.

Quoted

"Anyone who peaks in high school is a loser in life. So don't peak in high school." ALBA

It makes it a lot easier, right?

JA: Something that you don't hate is awesome as a parent.

RC: Because you're going to watch it a lot. We're lucky, too. I think it's a good time to be parents in terms of media. Like, I missed the whole … what are the Australian dudes that sing?

JA: The Teletubbies? And the Wiggles. And the Barney.

RC: The Barney. We missed all of that.

Well, I like to see that you're not actually tearing each other apart.

JA: Just wait till you leave. It's on.

CHRIS LEE

▶ Music director Yannick Nezet-Seguin leads the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Reimagining 'Rite of Spring'

The Philadelphia Orchestra is adding a modern twist to Stravinsky's classic
Watch for video projections, dancers and even a high-flying aerialist

The 1913 premiere of Igor Stravinsky's landmark work "The Rite of Spring" in Paris became historic when a near-riot greeted the groundbreaking music and Nijinsky's envelope-pushing choreography. The Philadelphia Orchestra will celebrate the centenary of that premiere in a new rendition created in partnership with Philadelphia Live Arts and New York's Ridge Theater Company.

"It's not as easy to shock and surprise people these days," says Jeremy Rothman, the Orchestra's vice president of artistic planning. "But we do expect that people will see a presentation unlike anything they're ever seen before in Verizon Hall."

The newly staged "Rite of Spring" will feature video projections, theatrical lighting, dancers and an aerialist performing high above the stage, a 21st-century reimagining far removed from the 1913 staging's avant-garde primitivism. "We didn't want to try to replicate the original staging or even to necessarily draw inspiration from it," Rothman says. "We started from a completely blank canvas."

Rothman explains that this type of multimedia presentation is indicative of the direction the orchestra is taking. In recent months the venerable ensemble has also performed the music from "Fantasia" and "West Side Story," with the films' images projected above them. But the remainder of this weekend's program — Ravel's Piano Concerto in G major, with pianist Jean-Yves Thibaudet, and Leopold Stokowski's transcription of Bach's Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor — will be much more traditional.

As Rothman says, "It's a strong program that really reflects the full history and glory of the Philadelphia Orchestra."

In defense of the short, the skinny and the small

The Hookup

AMBER MADISON
AMBERMADISONONLINE.COM

The secret is out, ladies: Guys know we talk about their junk. It's funny, because as a guy reminded me recently, guys "don't go around talking about girls' vaginas." If they did, we'd probably call them pigs and think they're immature.

It may not be something that guys often complain about out loud, but they too feel objectified. As a result, they're insecure about their bodies. Many guys who are short feel disqualified by girls before they even have a chance to prove themselves. A short guy complained to me that even his cute face and bulky muscles didn't seem like enough because he isn't tall.

Other guys worry about being too skinny. As one of my clients confessed, "I'm always worried about how skinny I am. I don't know if [girls] see me as manly." At the other end of the spectrum are guys who have gained a few pounds. They make great efforts to watch what they eat and count calories. Since they're guys, often they don't feel comfortable expressing their concerns.

We may assume that body issues are "a girl thing." Maybe because of this we feel justified gossiping about how much heat a guy is packing or ignoring online dating messages from short guys. But not only are we hurting guys' feelings when we do this, we're limiting our dating pool based on shallow criteria — criteria that makes us cringe when the situation is reversed.

If we don't want guys judging us by the numbers (height, weight, bra size), then we shouldn't judge them on those things either. I'm not suggesting dating someone you're not attracted to, but I am urging you not to disqualify people based on shallow criteria before taking the time to see if you could be attracted to them or not.

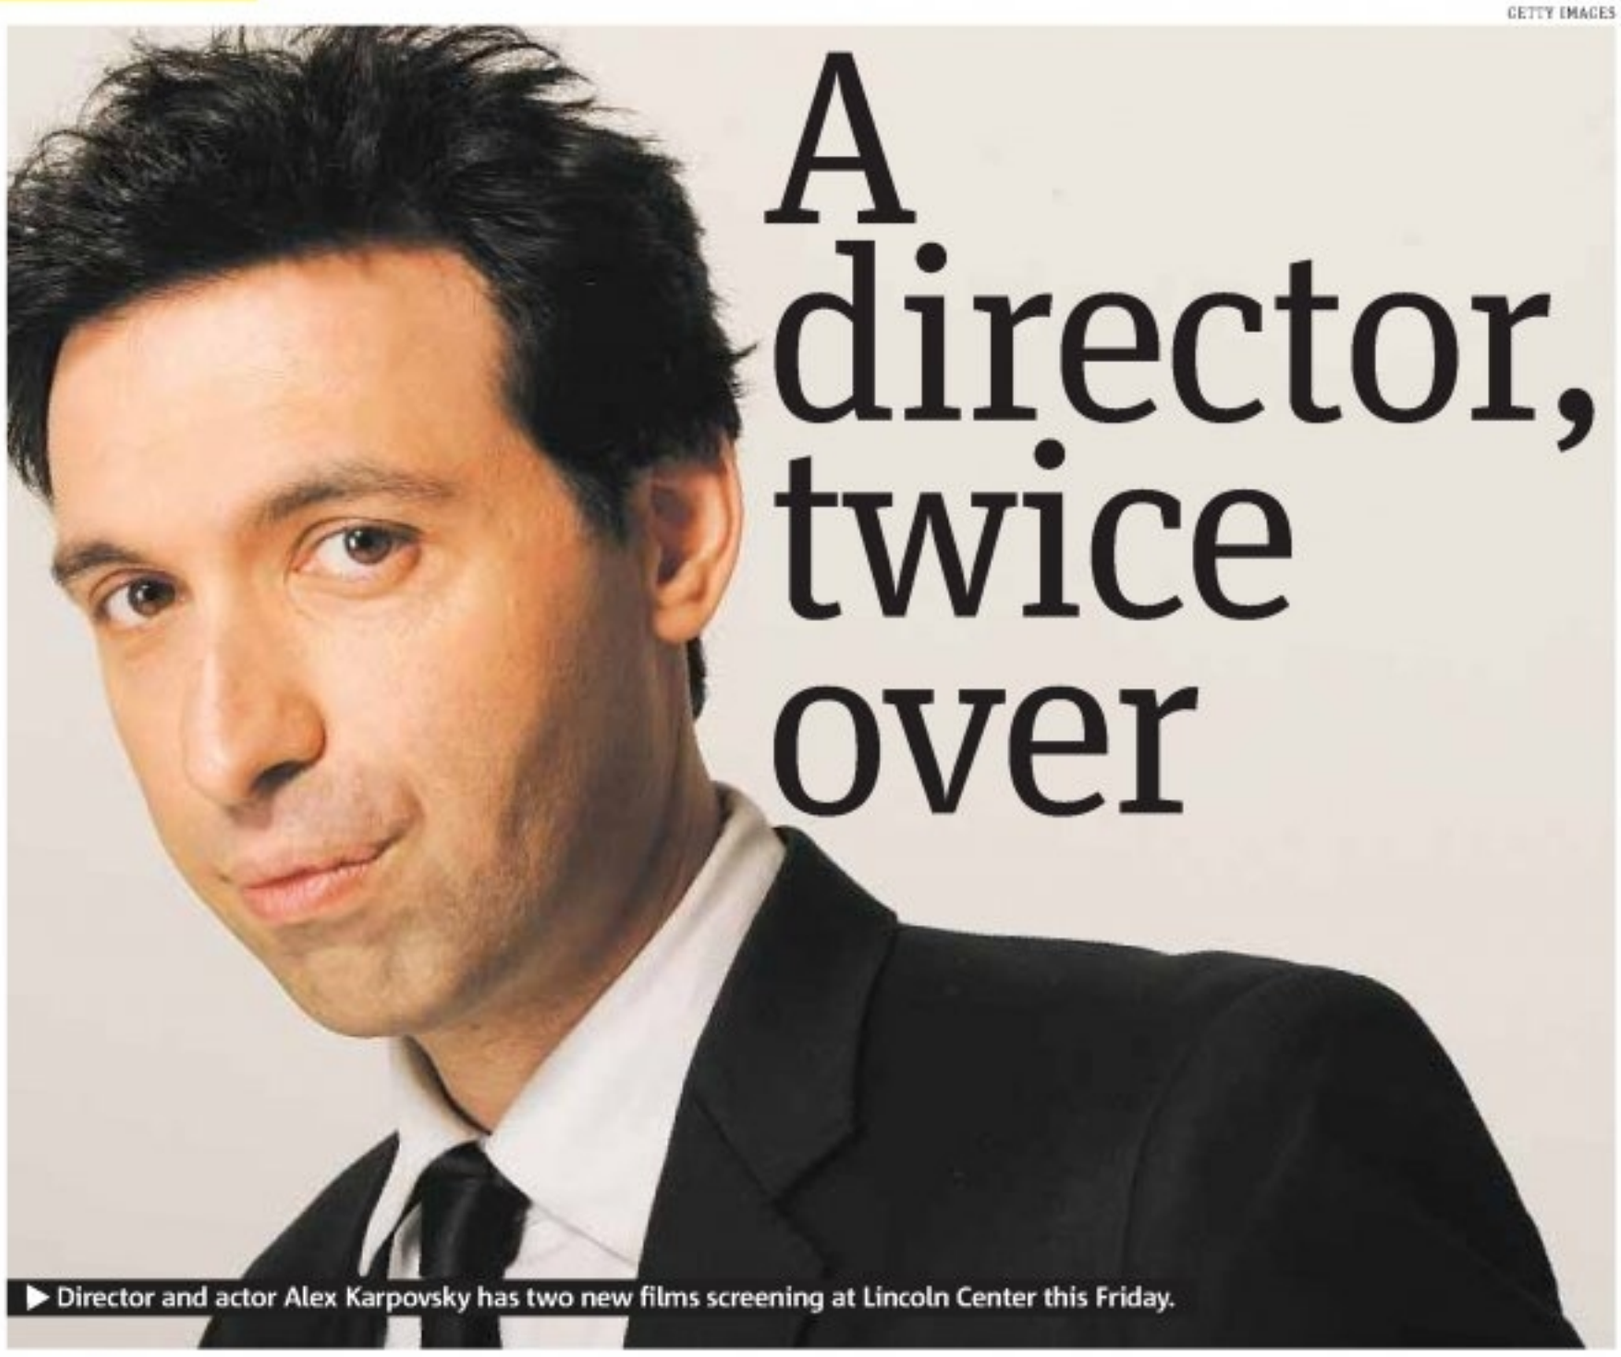
A director, twice over



Director and actor Alex Karpovsky has two new films screening at Lincoln Center this Friday.

Alex Karpovsky of 'Girls' talks about the two new films he's directed, loneliness and being attracted to stories of misfortune

Best known for his role as Ray Ploshansky on HBO's "Girls," indie filmmaker Alex Karpovsky helmed both films of a double feature slated for a limited release at Lincoln Center this Friday. Karpovsky wrote, directed and stars in both "Red Flag" and "Rubberneck." "Red Flag" tells the story of a filmmaker on a lonely road-trip, and "Rubberneck" centers on an introverted scientist whose infatuation with a co-worker turns into obsession. Karpovsky spoke with us about what draws him into a story, getting into character and what loneliness does to his head.

"In 'Girls,' I try to understand what they want from me, and it's usually something that I have a lot of fun doing. In my own projects, I tend toward stories driven by misfortune."
KARPOVSKY

You tend to play characters at a crossroads in their lives. They're living through difficult times, jilted in love — is this something you seek out?
I do seek it out to some extent. "Rubberneck," "Red Flag" and "Girls" are largely character-driven. I think stories of people in transition are naturally interesting. That's where all the juicy stuff is.

So you're specifically interested in loneliness?
Lonely people searching for a cure for their loneliness. No matter how misguided, tortured or perverse that search might be.

Would you say that you're a romantic? I think a lot of people would say that the Ray and Shoshanna arc is their favorite in "Girls."
In "Girls," I try to understand what they want from me, and it's usually something that I have a lot of fun doing. In my own projects, I tend toward stories driven by misfortune. I'm not particularly engaged by watching people be showered in fortune and blessings. It doesn't create a forum for conflict.

Creative loneliness inspired "Red Flag." Are you glad to be out of that part of your life?
I do a lot of things as part of a negotiation with loneliness. I wrote "Red Flag" by myself, but the writing process wasn't that long, so I didn't have time for the suicidal thoughts to really solidify.

Can you tell us anything about your next project?
I'm starting to collaborate with people on it, which is making it bearable. It's something I want to shoot in Mexico. We went down there in December to do some location scouting, and hopefully it should come out at some point in the future.

Q&A

What do you like best about the filmmaking process?

The variety. Writing is usually a solitary thing, so I start itching for collaboration. Production is more of a circus. With editing, it's back to a sort of solitary state. I don't know how writers don't get paralyzed by loneliness. I couldn't do it.

London FW diary

TUESDAY, FEB 19

5 p.m.

In a lot of ways, Edward Meadham and Benjamin Kirchhoff aptly represent what we look to London Fashion Week for: wild eccentricity and creative risk. So it's fitting that their artful work kind of served as a parting note for England's shows. This wasn't exactly the place to go for wearable, commercial clothes. The collection was dense with challenging shapes (who can pull off those ruffled vinyl trousers?) and ideas (those strong Edwardian, Vatican and medieval references) that wouldn't translate easily to a morning train commute or even the average special occasion. Instead, their work pointedly reminded us that in an era where fashion is overrun with disposable images of unbridled consumption, it can still reach the creative heights of fine art.

Horoscope

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Your best qualities will be extremely evident in various areas of your life, from business to social situations. When you get involved, big things begin to happen.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Substantial accomplishments are possible, especially in developments where your compassionate instincts are aroused. You could go after some magnanimous goals, with good results.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Your ability to effectively deal with others could be your best asset. You'll instinctively know how to bring out your colleagues' best qualities and make them feel appreciated.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Focus your efforts and energies on matters that can help your career and/or add to your resources. It's your current strong suit, where you can apply the best that's in you.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Instead of fretting about whether or not your ideas will work, put them to the test. If you should fail then try, try again. Remember, action begets action.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Something of true significance that has been subjected to many frustrating delays could break open for you through the work of a considerate ally. It was worth waiting for.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. You'll not be in the mood to get linked up with individuals who tend to drag their feet. Seek to associate with people who are as energetic and active as you are.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. A determination to succeed is likely to be your greatest asset. Once this particular resource is tapped, your every objective will be realized.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Plans that require bold measures are destined to go much smoother for you today than they will tomorrow. Time is not your best ally in activities that require an aggressive approach.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Although you might need a push or a jump-start, you'll be great once you get going. If you can team up with an eager beaver, that should do the trick.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Even though you are a strong independent thinker, your companions are likely to have a strong influence on your attitude. Their input will be constructive, not conflicting.

Think of the children, but feel sorry for the dog

RE: "ARE PEOPLE MORE UPSET OVER MINDY MCCREADY'S DOG THAN HER CHILDREN?" (METRO, FEB. 19) Well, yes — she killed her dog, not her children. If she had killed children and left her dog behind, I'm sure the focus of the tragedy would then have been on the human victims. Besides, I imagine most people suspect the children will be less scarred without her.

ROLLIE HATCH, VIA E-MAIL

If anybody else is equally sickened by the unspeakable act that Mindy McCready did to the family dog before she killed herself, then he or she should do something. It is too late for that pet but if you were planning on buying a dog, cat, ferret or bird, why not adopt a homeless pet instead? If you cannot do so, then consider making a donation to an animal shelter, preferably a no-kill one. Short on cash? Why not, just for once, instead of going out on a Friday night for dinner and drinks, stay in and donate the savings to an animal charity.

GEORG DEYAB, VIA E-MAIL

Written word is like a window to the past

RE: "SOME NOTIONS SHOULD GO THE WAY OF CHIVALRY" (METRO, FEB. 19) Obviously letter writer Alan Brown missed the point that article was trying to make, judging by the first-person narrative response submitted. I see and get you points, but I also understood the point to the original article. I guess you never had the pleasure of reading a letter from a relative who passed long before you were born. It's a unique window into past lives, one you wouldn't be able to peer into without those yellowed pieces of paper.

TOM MCGRAW, VIA E-MAIL

Violence should be last resort

Automatic federal spending cuts loom on March 1, which would include the Pentagon. We could dramatically cut the military budget and the nation would be safer if we began to rely on smarter ways of achieving national security. Gandhi and Martin Luther King successfully used nonviolent methods in their struggles. An architect of the Arab Spring, Gene Sharp, has written extensively on nonviolently achieving national security.

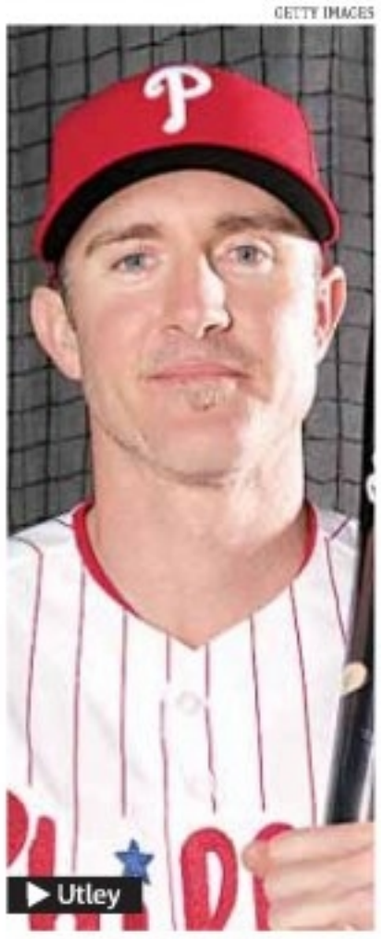
Utley on track to start for Phillies on Opening Day

GETTY IMAGES



Utley

Dust off those old Chase Utley jerseys. It looks like the oft-injured All-Star is on track to start for the Phillies on Opening Day.

Utley, who hasn't seen an opener since 2010, fielded a sizeable amount of ground balls at second base yesterday, another sign his balky knees are healed. The Phillies announced that Utley will play in back-to-back exhibition games (tomorrow, Saturday) in Clearwater.

Skipper Charlie Manuel plans to play Utley for two or three innings in tomorrow's intra-squad game. Saturday is the Grapefruit League opener. He's been swinging the bat well this spring.

"I think, after the season was over, with the way he's swinging right now and the way he looks, you could tell he's definitely willing to pay the price to get back to where he was," Manuel told reporters. "I think Utley wants to play quite a few more years." METRO

Start 'em up

If the Grapefruit League schedule is any preview, expect Cole Hamels to be starting April 1. Here's the spring slate:

- Cole Hamels, Saturday
- Roy Halladay, Sunday
- Cliff Lee, Monday
- Kyle Kendrick, Tuesday
- John Lannan, Wednesday

La Salle, Temple set to tango for Big Five title

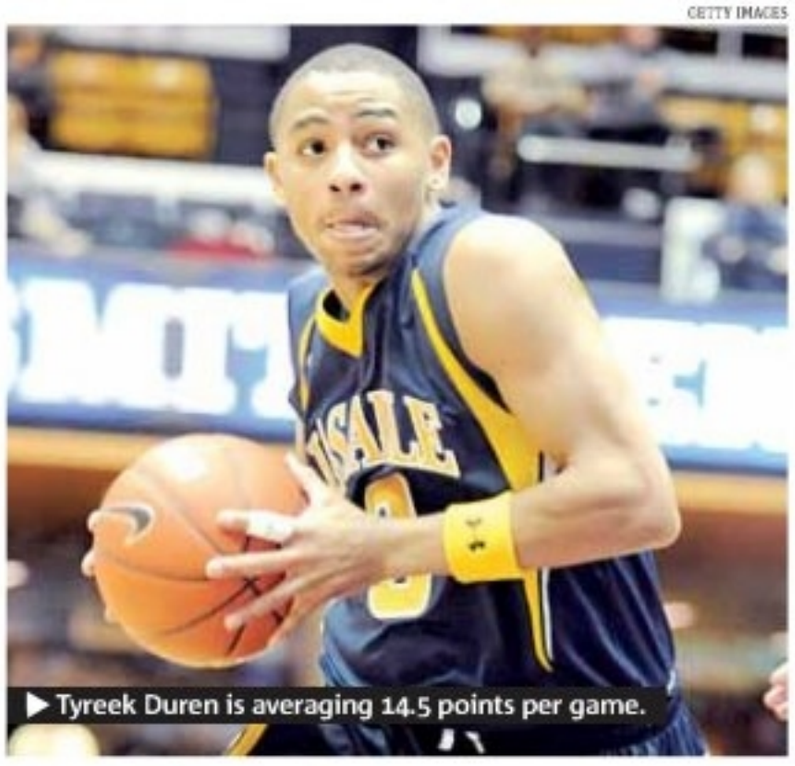
Explorers can claim outright championship with win, first since 1990 Wyatt, Duren take center stage Tip-off today

There are many bubble teams among the Big 5, but one might have the inside track to an NCAA tournament invite.

La Salle and Temple will lay it all on the line tonight in a nationally televised contest. Both schools have Big 5 Player of the Year candidates — Temple's Khalif Wyatt, La Salle's Tyreek Duren or Ramon Galloway — and are coming off Atlantic 10 victories. The city rivals look evenly matched, but the Explorers (18-6) can secure themselves a ticket to the Big Dance with a win over the Owls (17-8).

La Salle has already clinched a share of the city-series title and a win over Temple would give the school its first outright Big 5 championship since 1990. The Explorers haven't reached the NCAAs since 1992.

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Tyreek Duren is averaging 14.5 points per game.

ON TV TODAY

Explorers at Owls, 7 p.m. (CBS Sports Network)

"You want to see improvement in the mental areas and that's where we've grown," La Salle coach John Giannini said.

It won't be easy at a rocking Temple gym. The Owls have taken the last seven meetings with La Salle and own a 9-1 mark against the Explorers at home.

"The Big 5 champion has made it to the NCAA tournament [13 straight years], that's where everyone wants to be," Giannini told KYW Newsradio. "And winning at Temple is a huge resume win, they are an outstanding program, an outstanding team, and it would strengthen anyone's case who is under consideration to win at Temple." METRO

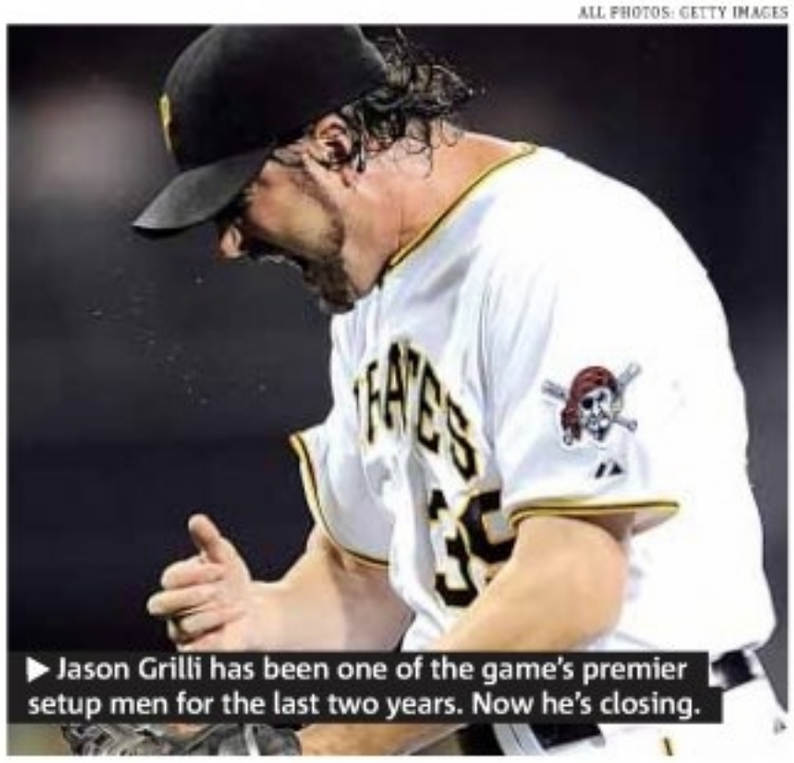
SAVING THE DAY

It's easy to throw out empty fantasy cliches like "wait on a quarterback" and "don't pay for saves." Executing the plan takes some more work.

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES



▶ Jason Grilli has been one of the game's premier setup men for the last two years. Now he's closing.

Last season, guys like Jim Johnson, Fernando Rodney and Rafael Soriano came out of nowhere to rank 1-2-3 in total saves. This year won't be much different at the game's most volatile position. Some candidates to circle for the middle-to-late rounds of drafts:

Fire Grilli

The Pirates weren't willing to pay Joel Hanrahan, so they shipped him to Boston. It was an easy decision because they have Jason Grilli to step in as closer right away. He's racked up 12.5 strikeouts per nine innings over the last two years while posting a sub-3.00 ERA.

Taking Perks

Glen Perkins is a former first-round pick that took a winding path to where he is now — locked in to the closer's job with plenty of leash in his age-30 season. The biggest concern is that the Twins aren't going to win a lot of games, thus capping save chances. Still, his ERA and WHIP will be elite.

From the East

Don't waste a pick on Carlos Marmol. Although he'll likely enter the season as the Cubs' closer once again, his leash is going to be very short. Kyuji Fujikawa, the best reliever in Japan over the last six years, has been brought in for support. He's a strong flier.

Top hoops adds

1. Bismack Biyombo, C, CHA — Everyone is desperate for blocks. Biyombo is quietly averaging 2.1 over the last 10 games.
2. Kris Humphries, PF, BKN — He's buried on the depth chart right now, but a deadline trade could work wonders.
